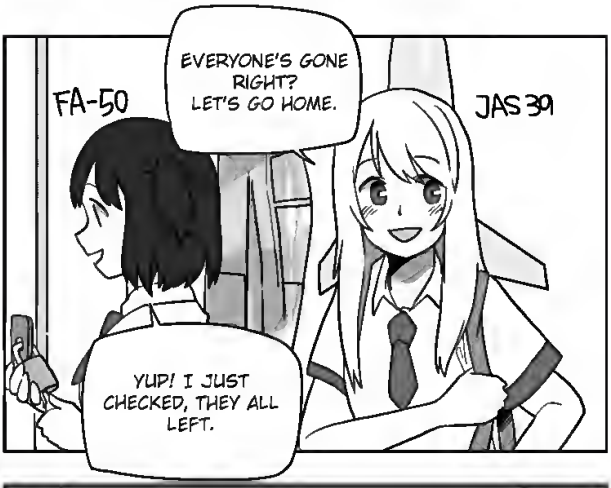
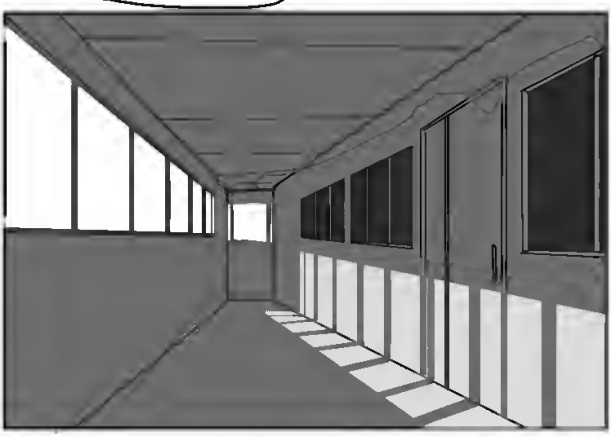
INVISIBLE



FA-50
JAS 39
EVERYONE'S GONE RIGHT? LET'S GO HOME.
YUP! I JUST CHECKED, THEY ALL LEFT.



rustle

B-2
HUH...?

NOCTURNAL

UWA... EVERYONE WENT HOME WITHOUT ME AGAIN
B-2 →
THEY DO THIS EVERY NOW AND THEN...
creep
WHERE WAS THE FRONT GATE AGAIN...
Uuuuu KYAAAA!

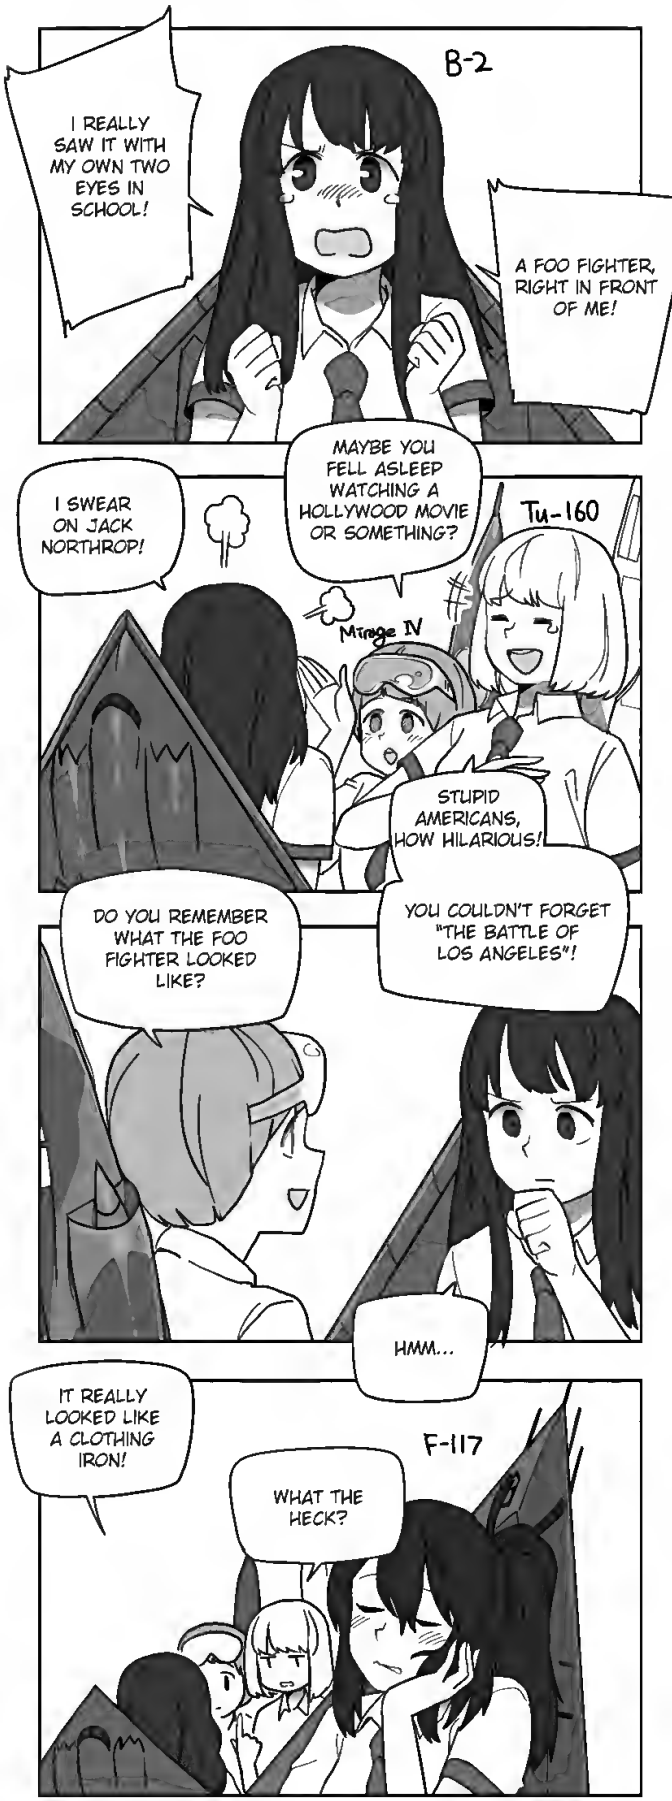
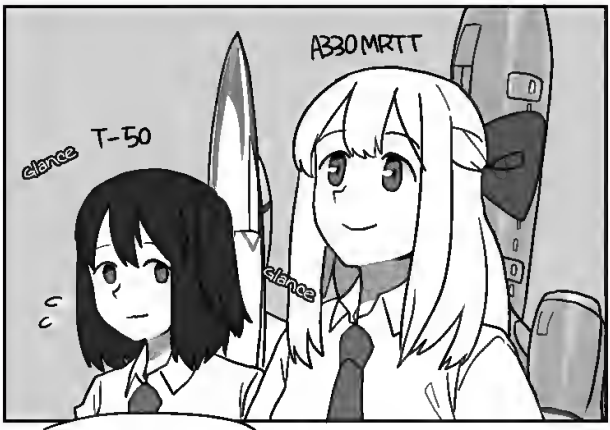
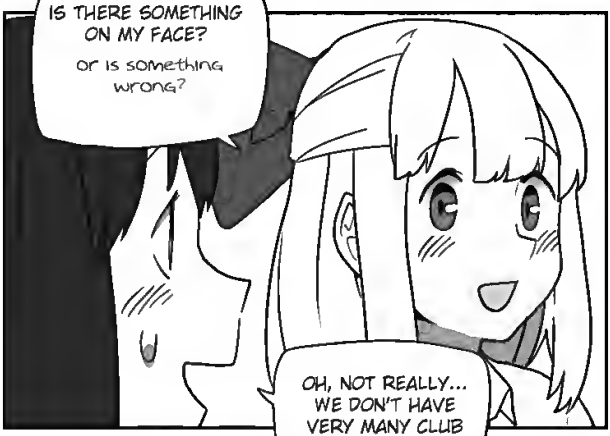
FOO FIGHTER



B-2
I REALLY SAW IT WITH MY OWN TWO EYES IN SCHOOL!
A FOO FIGHTER, RIGHT IN FRONT OF ME!
I SWEAR ON JACK NORTHROP!
MAYBE YOU FELL ASLEEP WATCHING A HOLLYWOOD MOVIE OR SOMETHING?
Tu-160
Mirage IV
STUPID AMERICANS, HOW HILARIOUS!
DO YOU REMEMBER WHAT THE FOO FIGHTER LOOKED LIKE?
YOU COULDN'T FORGET "THE BATTLE OF LOS ANGELES"!
HMM...
IT REALLY LOOKED LIKE A CLOTHING IRON!
F-117
WHAT THE HECK?

NOT VERY FAMILIAR





You aren't made in America?
Yeah
YOU AREN'T THE FIRST, BUT IT'S A RARE EVENT.
MY FRIENDS OVER IN THE CLUBROOM WERE SUPRISED TOO...
OUR AIRBUS FAMILY AREN'T EXACTLY HOSTILE TOWARDS YOU GUYS SO THAT'S PECULIAR.

WELL, I'LL MAKE SOME DELICIOUS EUROPEAN CUISINE THAT YOU HAVEN'T EVER COME ACROSS BEFORE SO LOOK FOWARD TO IT!
Y-YEAH!
EVEN THOUGH I CAN'T EAT IT...

Anyan's comments:

The original meaning of 'Foo Fighter' isn't the name of a rock band but rather a name given to unidentified flying objects in the Pacific and the Atlantic by USAF fighters during WWII. There were quite a bit of reports of unidentified flying objects by allied pilots, and some of them were reported as some secret weapon of the Axis or some sort of floating fireball in the sky, or even that the objects chased aircraft around. (even today, there are conspiracy theories claiming that they are Haunebu IIs that the Nazis made... probably in half-jest) According to the pilot's recollections, these UFOs would fly very fast, and emit light like Christmas tree lights. The fear of Foo Fighters were at one point so great that some pilots refused to take off.

The Battle of Los Angeles was an infamous UFO incident, in which unidentified aircraft allegedly appeared, to which the armed forces activated air raid alerts and caused a huge ruckus (it's labelled as a "battle", but there was no actual battle, though deaths were present). This incident caught the attention of ufologists as an urban legend, and was even made into a movie starring the present day LA as its setting where the Marines destroy some aliens, though I forget the name. In the newspaper article for the Battle of Los Angeles shows a picture of some objects in the sky seemingly emitting bright light, so you might think "maybe this really is aliens!?" but it's actually the Los Angeles Times' photo manipulation to make it more dramatic.

The F-117 and the B-2 doesn't seem like aircraft at all to the mere everyman, so are sometimes mistaken for a spaceship or even an UFO quite often. The infamous Area 51 was also the test site for the F-117 and since it often took off at night in secrecy, it's not surprising that people mistook them for UFOs.

Cryostasis Scans

kirbyeggs.tumblr.com

Translation: Hacchan
Typesetting: Kirbyeggs
Emotional Support: Yorty